Other reviewers mentioned the paper was too thin, but for the cost and size of the map I think it's fine. I would compare it to butcher paper.To frame a map this large would have been expensive, so I went to my local craft store and bought (2) 38x40 (the largest size I could find) 3/16" thick adhesive-backed white foam boards. Starting in the left-hand corner, I attached the map to the first foam board, and then cut the second foam board to fit the last 11" of the map. If you match the 2 foam board pieces up tightly, you won't be able to see the seam when you hang the map. A piece of masking tape on the backside helps too.Instead of nails I used (6) 3M adhesive tabs to hang it. You can usually find these in any picture frame/hook aisle. I hung it in a high-traffic hallway upstairs. I am amazed at how long my kids stay and study it.The 3/16" foam board is also great because it provides the cushion needed to add push-pins. Everyone in our household has their own colored push-pin and we've marked each location we have visited. If all 4 of us went on a family trip, that's also a different color push pin. (It's a good idea to make a key in the left hand corner of the map so you remember who's color is who's.)54 of 54 people found the following review helpful. Better than I expected!By T.

Winegard[[VIDEOID:mo3SZHCD3SETNQD]]My package arrived in 2 days (Prime) in a long, 4"x4"x36" box. The map itself was rolled in a plastic sleeve and there was a modest amount of packing material in the box to keep the map from shifting around. My map was in perfect condition when I removed it from the shipping box. Kudos to the shippers at .The map has a glossy finish but it is not stiff. I guess when people read it is laminated, they associate that with laminated ID cards which are hard plastic. This is best described as paper with a waterproof coating on it. I was not concerned about the coating as we plan to frame this and put it on the wall in our spare bedroom and use pins to mark all the places we travel to.This map is absolutely beautiful and looks awesome framed and mounted. It shows many cities and towns in every state, it also show rivers and relief. It identifies the major mountain ranges, shows most

(if not all) National Parks, National Recreation Areas, National Monuments, mountains with their elevation, and much more. I can't express enough at how great this map looks and it was only $10.xx! We've traveled to most of the US and are embarking on a 22 state trip during the summer of 2014 and we found out a pack of 100 map pins is not nearly enough. In summary, you will be very happy with this map. And we will try to remember to come back here and post a picture or video of it once we get it up on the wall. If not, it will be on our web site. UPDATE: I added a short video showing the map framed and mounted on the wall. We still have to add pins for 20 more states! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Perfect Map for Marking Family Trips By Fawn A. This is the perfect map for putting on a framed cork board, and putting on the wall to mark places visited in the United States. I had bought another map of North America, not thinking about the scale issue (the cities were too small to mark - no fun for our preschooler). This was the perfect scale for our purpose. The map is hanging on our son's wall, and he loves taking people to "his" map to show them the places he's gone and who he visited or memories he has of each place. The map was well-packaged, too, so there were no wrinkles or imperfections when we received it. We would definitely recommend this item for families or teachers looking for a child-friendly map.

Wake up your walls with Rand McNally's colorful, contemporary U.S. Wall Map (rolls out to 50" x 32"). A combination of bold colors and detailed cartography makes this map stand out in any home, classroom, or office. Features include: Color-matching relief to show mountain ranges and other elevation changes Clearly labeled state and city names for easy location State capitals and National Parks labeled on the map Time zone indications Albers projection for even representation of the country Compact rolled size for easy storage when not on the wall This U.S. Wall Map serves not only as a handy reference piece, but as an eye-catching accent for any room or office. This map looks great framed, too!
