The business of writing resumes is at an all-time high right now; more people are looking for more jobs than ever before. If you're a strong presenter - in oral and written format - you can provide this critical service and realize a very nice profit besides. It's not even necessary to be one of the great writers of the world, because developing resumes is a craft, not an art. A firm command of the English language, an interest in people, and the ability to market yourself will enable you to carve out a stimulating and rewarding niche in this in-demand field. Start Your Own Resume Writing Business outlines the start-up and overhead costs - which are refreshingly low - and details all the necessary materials, requirements, and potential problems areas of this challenging, enriching business opportunity.
