The deLorme fails because it hasn't been updated since the first edition (it's full of roads that haven't existed for decades) and it fails to distinguish private (gated) from public roads, or to distinguish paved from unpaved roads. Benchmark largely avoids those flaws (though they still have a problem removing decommissioned roads) and is, moreover, easier to read. This is the standard. There is no hardcopy or electronic atlas that will work better in remote rural areas. In the cities... who cares? You have a phone, don't you?3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Great camping accessoryBy JKR789Even in this day of electronic mapping, sometimes it is just easier to look at a printed map. This map has a good amount of detail and is large enough to read without things appearing cluttered. We keep this in the truck when we go camping and many times we pull it out at the campground to look things up. I am glad to have this.6 of 6 people found the following review helpful. 5th addition now being shippedBy John KilvikI was pleasantly surprised to receive the 5th and latest edition of the Washington St. Road and Recreation Atlas. I was perfectly happy with the older 2007 edition, but it got left out in the rain once too often, and unfortunately it's not waterproof. I spend a lot of time exploring the Gifford Pinchot and while this atlas is not a replacement for the more detailed National Forest Service maps from the NPS, it's an invaluable aid for trip planning and getting to the point where the more detailed maps become necessary.

Washington is cool, pristine and evergreen and boasts an incredibly wide range of outdoor recreation. Benchmark's Washington atlas has the latest, most accurate maps and reliable recreation information to make the most of these opportunities. The large-scale Landscape Maps make this atlas perfect for either freeway travel or four-wheeling fun on a remote back road. Includes complete Public Land ownership and GMU boundaries.Map Scale = 1:200,000

From the PublisherThe new 4th edition features updated Landscape Maps throughout - field-checked and field verified statewide - with complete back road information. Also, page-to-page overlap and large easy-to-read type. The Recreation Guide has also been thoroughly revised. Categorized listings include campgrounds, RV Parks, Parks, Monuments, and natural wonders, museums and historic sites. Outdoor activity listings include fishing, boating, and hunting areas, river rafting and winter recreation. The Metro map section, with coverage of greater Seattle/Tacoma, has also been updated.About the AuthorFounded in 1915 as the Cartographic Group, the first division of National Geographic, National Geographic Maps has been responsible for illustrating the world around us through the art and science of mapmaking.Today, National Geographic Maps continues this mission by creating the world's best wall maps, recreation maps, atlases, and globes which inspire people to care about and explore their world.
